1. Words by President, FIDIC Africa, Eng Abe Thela:

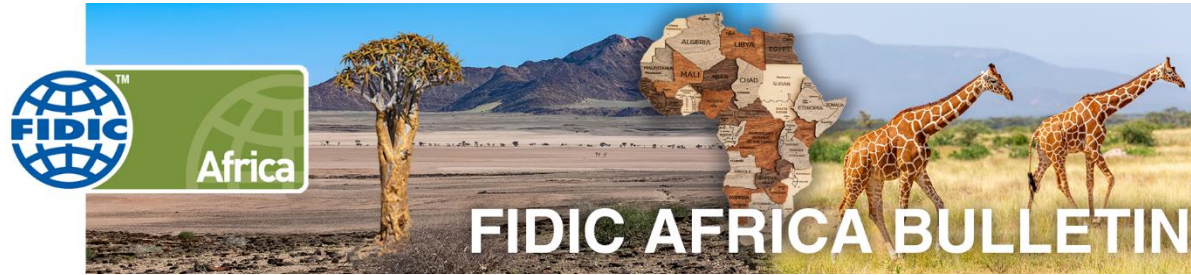

After my first year serving as President, since taking office in May, it gives me immense pleasure to share with you the highlights of the FIDIC Africa year as experienced through my role as FIDIC Africa President and Chair of the FIDIC Africa Exco.

The FIDIC Africa Conference held in Lagos, Nigeria, as a hybrid event, was successfully hosted by the Association of Consulting Engineers Nigeria (ACEN) in May this year. Most attended in person and the feedback I received was certainly that we needed the opportunity to network and interact in person once again, following two years of this event being hosted online only. Unfortunately, I was unable to attend owing to personal health issues, but I was one of the online attendees. I had recovered sufficiently to be able to attend the FIDIC Conference held in Geneva, Switzerland in September and that too turned out to be a successful hybrid conference, with many attending in-person as well. In the period between these events.... Continue Reading

2. Update by the Secretariat, Eng. Chris Campbell:

2022 has indeed been a year where we have worked on getting back to normality and this meant more in-person engagement following the removal of travel restrictions by many, if not all, of our FIDIC Africa Member countries, both within each country and across our various borders. The reality of course is that the COVID-19 virus has not disappeared but that after three years, we now know more about managing the risks and our respective economies cannot survive in isolation. We should have by now drawn lessons from the past and focused on improving our healthcare facilities and equally the digital connectivity that became essential when business and education was limited to online options only during the height of the pandemic. The Secretariat has been fortunate enough to have been able to remain fully functional during the pandemic, however the same cannot be said about many of our Member Associations even in the past year in the post pandemic period. ... ## 8. ACEN - Nigeria News

The 2022 has been a productive year for ACEN in spite of harsh economic conditions. Activities during the year were hybrid, physical and online.

1. ACEN Magazine

The ACEN magazine, 'The Consulting Engineer', is a tri-annual professional magazine that disseminates information about consulting engineering and its contribution to the infrastructural, technological and economic development of Nigeria while recognizing and celebrating the consulting engineering expertise of ACEN member firms and their contributions to the Nigerian society. The magazine covers news, events, noteworthy projects and opinions in the various engineering disciplines.

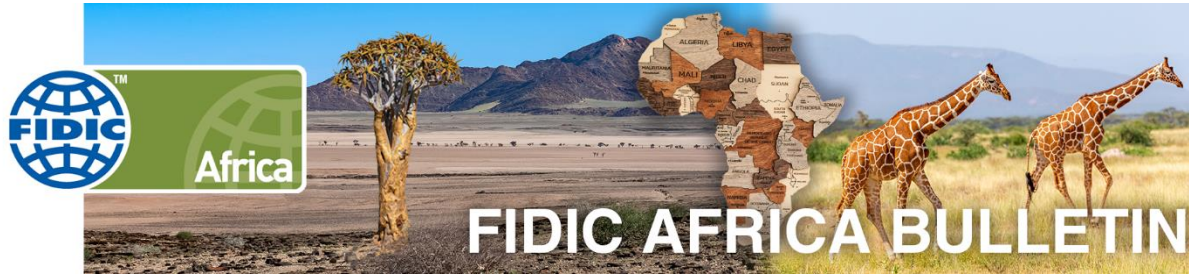

Since the publication of the first edition, the magazine has reported on a variety of engineering issues, ranging from civil, mechanical, industrial, chemical, and electrical systems to water infrastructure as well as examined environmental issues. 'The Consulting Engineer' has a circulation of One Thousand (1,000) hard copies and is free to all recipients. A soft copy of the magazine is available for reading only on the ACEN website, www.acen.org.ng.

ACEN is happy to share soft copies of the latest editions, Vol. 9, Nos. 1 & 2, the two editions for 2022 that have been published to date, with fellow FIDIC Africa Member Associations for their reading pleasure and we welcome comments and or contributions.

Thank you.
